

Ștefan Dănilă

Ștefan Dănilă is the first airman appointed Chief of Romanian General Staff (Chief of Defense) between 2011-2015. He was a fighter pilot, but ended his active military life as pilot on C-130.

Commander of two Romanian Air Bases, has a wide experience into organization management, from tactical to strategical level. Without any political engagement, he was adviser to the minister of defense and to the Prime minister. He left the Romanian Armed Forces in 2017, as general (r).

Expert in air security, with a PhD in „Air security in time of the globalization” from 2009, he has knowledge and experience in risk assessment and risk management. He is involved in a series of projects in education, media and business with the only purpose to help and to support well doing activities. He initiated, together with Mediafax press group, the Defense and Security Monitor Project, launched in April 2018. General (r) Ștefan Dănilă has been actively participating in the administration of the project and as the author of several published analyses and viewpoints.